GAVIN P. MALOOF

President, Houston Rockets

Gavin P. Maloof was named president of the Houston Rockets Dec. 23, 1980, succeeding his late father, George J. Maloof, who died Nov. 29 in Albuquerque, N.M. The Maloof family had purchased the basketball team May 25, 1979. The youngest team president in major sports history, Maloof, 25, insists that his age does not intimidate him.

"Age really has nothing to do with it. I've always respected everyone we work with and come in contact with in the Maloof businesses," he explains. "In return, I hope to earn their respect. Working in my Dad's shadow for 14 years was a business learning experience that was invaluable."

"My father always made us work; it was a way of life. With the Rockets I sell season tickets personally. People can't believe that the owner of the team is actually calling them. But I like the personal contact. A series of luncheons this summer directly led to a number of season ticket purchases. During the season we aim at giving people a complete entertainment package, music, dancing, half-time entertainment. Anything to create excitement."

One of the questions often asked the Rockets president is: "Does it give him a strange feeling to watch a game and know he owns all the players, all of whom, or most, are older than him?" "Not really," he answers. "I don't look at it that way, anymore than I look at our beer companies and think I own all the employees. They all are individuals with special skills and our company pays them for using those skills."

"I don't think being young is a handicap. I'm a good listener and a quick learner. Ray Patterson is my mentor. He runs the day-to-day operation, and he knows how things are supposed to run. I can keep him up on my generation's views. We both want to put a good team on the floor, to prove that getting to the finals last season was not a fluke."

"This team can be successful for a long time. I'm not naive enough to say that we have a championship club, but I know we've got a good club. Getting Elvin Hayes back was just a step in improving a good club. We're not resting on our laurels."

Born in Albuquerque, N.M. Oct. 9, 1956, Gavin attended Heights Catholic, now Our Lady of Fatima School, and Albuquerque Academy. At Highland High School he was named to the All-City football team.

He attended New Mexico Military Institute in Roswell and then received his Bachelor of Arts degree in Speech Communications and Business from Trinity University in San Antonio, Texas.

Following George Maloof's death, Gavin's brother, Joe, was named President and Chief Executive Officer of the Maloof Companies. In addition to the Rockets, the Maloof Companies number eight hotels, including the new Classic in Albuquerque and the Sheraton-Anaheim at Disneyland; the Coors Beer Distributorships in New Mexico; majority ownership of the First National Bank in Albuquerque; Quality Import Company, a liquor and wine distributorship; and Contract Carriers, a trucking operation. Sales and revenues of all these companies approach $125 million a year.

Gavin has worked for the Maloof Companies since he was ten years old, early employment being a family tradition. In 1970 Gavin and brother Joe began the Coors recycling operation for aluminum beer cans which later developed into a full-scale plant. Gavin also worked as a warehouseman and on delivery trucks before joining the sales force.

Gavin's mother, Mrs. Colleen Maloof serves as Chairman of the Board of the Maloof Companies and also is a member of the Board of Regents of the University of New Mexico. Gavin also has a sister, Adrienne, 21, and two other brothers, George, 16, and Phillip, 12.

RAY PATTERSON

General Manager, Houston Rockets

When the Houston Rockets reached the N.B.A. Championship round last May, Ray Patterson became the first General Manager in the 35-year history of the league to have been in the finals with different franchises. The Rockets lost the championship this year to the Boston Celtics, but in 1971 the Milwaukee Bucks under his administration swept the title from the Baltimore Bullets.

Beginning his 14th season as an N.B.A. executive, Patterson's longevity as a general manager is equaled by Jerry Colangelo at Phoenix and surpassed only by Red Auerbach's 30 years at Boston and Eddie Donovan's 17 seasons with the New York and Buffalo. Among this quartet Patterson's winning percentage of .528 (563-503) is topped only by Auerbach's .643. Incidentally, Auerbach with 14 league titles and Max Winter with five with the Minneapolis Lakers of the early 1950's are the only general managers active or retired with more than a single World Championship.

"In my mind our Western Conference championship far surpasses what happened with the Bucks in 1971," says Patterson. "You have to have cried to appreciate laughter. That Bucks club won the title in its third year of existence, the quickest championship in pro sports history. The Rockets franchise has suffered through financially-troubled times and undergone six ownership changes. Even this year there were a lot of obstacles and that made reaching the finals even more rewarding."

Houston's presence in the finals caught most by surprise, but the Rockets in the playoffs is not new. In the last seven years, Houston has qualified for the playoffs five times, a mark exceeded only by the six playoff appearances of Philadelphia and Washington. The 1977 club won the Central Division title with the best record in club history, 49-33, and advanced to the Eastern Conference finals. Houston has been second in its division the last three years and made three consecutive playoff appearances for the first time in club history.

A firm believer in the value of experienced versus untried players, Patterson constructed the Rockets mainly via the trade and free agent route. Four players came in the draft: Alen Leavell, Calvin Murphy, Robert Reid and Rudy Tomjanovich; three came in trades: Calvin Garrett, Moses Malone and Billy Paultz; and four were signed as free agents: Mike Dunleavy, Tom Henderson, Major Jones and Bill Willoughby. Only Henderson and Willoughby required compensation to their previous clubs. Patterson again went for experience this summer when he brought All-Star Elvin Hayes back to Houston for a couple of second round draft picks.

Voted by his peers as the 1977 Sporting News N.B.A. Executive of the Year, Patterson is only the third general manager in Rockets history. Jack McMahon served the first year of the franchise, 1967-68, and Pete Newell the next four, 1968-72.

Holder of Bachelor and Masters degrees from the University of Wisconsin, where he lettered four years in basketball, Patterson played professionally for the Flint, Mich. team in the old National Basketball League. He returned to his high school, Wayland Academy in Beaver Dam, Wis. as basketball coach in 1949 and in 1954 was named president and headmaster of the school.

Selected as President of the Milwaukee Bucks in 1968, he helped guide that club to a World Championship, two division titles and three playoff spots in four years. Draft pick Lew Alcindor, now Kareem Abdul-Jabbar was the prime ingredient of the Bucks team, but veteran acquisitions such as Oscar Robertson, Lucius Allen, Bob Boozer, and McCoy McLemore were big contributors in the 1971 Bucks title march.

Patterson and wife, Ruth, reside in Sugarland, Texas with son Peter, a senior at Dulles High School. Son Steve and daughters Liz and Peg are at the University of Texas while oldest son, Pat, resides in California.

DEL HARRIS

Head Coach, Houston Rockets

The silver hair and Indiana twang of Houston Rockets Coach Del Harris became almost as familiar to pro basketball fans last spring as the Rockets deliberate offense and sustained defense which took the team to the N.B.A. finals. In three years as an assistant and two seasons as head coach of the Rockets, Harris' stature has soared. His impressive and in-control instructions to his team, viewed nationally by millions on television enhanced his reputation.

He originally wanted to be a minister and got into coaching only temporarily. Ten years ago he was perfectly content to be basketball coach and athletic director at Earlham College in Richmond, Ind. Last spring, he was the talk of the N.B.A.

The Rockets success in the playoffs was no fluke. Both of Harris' Rockets teams made the playoffs, the first time in the club's 14-year history any coach had guided consecutive teams to the playoffs. And his teams have made the most of their playoff invites. Only the Philadelphia 76ers over the past two years have played more playoff games, 34, than the Rockets, 28, and have been in more series, seven to six. After becoming only the 3rd team in league history to reach the finals with a regular season mark under .500, the Rockets set an all-time N.B.A. mark with eight road playoff wins, breaking the record of seven by Boston in 1968.

The key to success was the Rocket defense. The regular season 107.9 defensive average was the lowest in four seasons. But after the midway point last season the Rockets gave up only 104.0 points per game, a figure which ranked with the best in the league. Then the Rockets set another defensive mark in the playoffs, a league record nine straight times holding the opponent under 100 points.

"In two years we have been in six playoff series and won four," says Harris. "I have confidence in my coaching ability, but the main thing is having the right blend of players to work with. Through trial and error, we've come up with an offensive and defensive scheme that fits our players. That's why we play 'Rocketball'. We stress defense first. On offense we play at a moderate tempo, trying to make percentage shots and passes. It's no accident that we went from almost 18 turnovers a game in regular season to just around 14 in the playoffs."

"Our team developed an esprit de corps that hard defense can give. We concentrated on things like steals, blocks, holding the opponent's field goal percentage down. In the last part of the season we would have ranked among the top half-dozen teams in any of those categories. More than half our games were decided by six points or less. In the last half of the season we won most of our close games."

Post-season experience has been the pattern throughout Harris' coaching career. His last seven teams at Earlham averaged over 20 wins and earned tourney berths. In the Puerto Rican Pro League, where many present N.B.A. mentors have worked, his teams made five straight playoff appearances and won three national titles. His nine-year mark at Earlham was 185-70 .714 while his Puerto Rican teams were 154-79 .661.

A native of Plainfield, Ind., he graduated from Milligan College (Tenn.) where he won four letters each in basketball and baseball. He began coaching on the prep level in Tennessee and Indiana. Prior to joining the Rockets as an assistant to Tom Nissalke in 1976, he was an assistant with the A.B.A. Utah Stars and at the University of Utah.

Harris has had two books published by the Parker Division of Prentice Hall, Multiple Defense for Winning Basketball (1971) and Coaching Basketball's Zone Office (1975). A third book, a positive living novel for teenagers entitled, Playing the Game, has just been released.

Harris and wife, Joyce, reside in Cypress. They are the parents of four youngsters: Larry, 19, a freshman at Eastern New Mexico; Alex, 18, Stan, 13, and Carey, 12, all students at the Cy-Creek Schools.

CARROLL DAWSON

Assistant Coach, Houston Rockets

Part of the sports scene in Texas since starring as a high school senior for his Alba, Texas team which was 44-3, Carroll Dawson has been the Rockets assistant coach for the past year. In addition to his assistant duties to Head Coach Del Harris, Dawson also has been in charge of the Rockets team in the California Summer League the past two summers. Dawson went on from Alba High to earn junior college All-American basketball honors under Coach Boyd Converse at Paris, Texas. He then led Baylor in scoring and rebounding, 13.3 and 7.3 as a junior, and 16.4 and 8.8 as a senior in 1959-60 under Coach Bill Henderson. Dawson returned to the Baylor campus as an assistant to Bill Menefee in 1963. In 1973 he began three and a half seasons as head coach of the Baylor team until he resigned mid-way through the 1976-77 campaign. Following his departure from Baylor he worked for a year in the scouting department of the Dallas Cowboys football team and then was with the sporting goods division of the Converse Rubber Company prior to joining the Rockets.

DICK VANDEROORT

Trainer, Houston Rockets

Only four N.B.A. trainers have been with the same team longer than Dick Vandervoort who is in his 11th season as trainer and traveling secretary of the Houston Rockets. Atlanta's Joe O'Toole, Golden State's Dick D'Oliva, Philadelphia's Al Domenico and Phoenix's Joe Proski have longer tenure. Dick joined the Rockets in 1971, the summer that the team moved to Houston from San Diego. He had spent 11 years as head athletic trainer at Washington State University in Pullman, Wash. Prior to that he was the trainer for one year at Wichita State University. In addition to his training and travel duties with the Rockets, Dick also serves as Chairman of the N.B.A.'s Trainer's Association, representing that group in dealings with the Player's Association and club physicians. The father of sons Mark, 18, and Todd, 16, Dick and his wife, Concetta, reside in Houston.

GENE PETERSON

Broadcaster, Houston Rockets

Gene Peterson brings his excitement-packed description of Houston Rockets basketball to the airwaves for his seventh straight season during which he has broadcast 540 consecutive regular season and playoff games without a miss. And this year it will be a re-union of Peterson, KPRC Radio-950, and the Rockets. Peterson joined the Rockets for the 1975-76 season after having served as Sports Director of KPRC for a year. KPRC had been the Rockets broadcast station for five years, 1971-76, and this summer rejoined the team for at least three years as the Rockets flagship station. A native of Albert Lea, Minn., Peterson studied at Brown Institute in Minneapolis. Following Air Force duty he began his radio career in 1963 with KBRK in Brookings, S.D. He also worked at WECL in Eau Claire, Wis.; KOB in Albuquerque, N.M.; and KCMO in Kansas City, Mo. before joining KPRC. Gene and his wife, Marsha, reside in Kingwood with youngsters Jennifer 15, and Paul, 9, while son Todd, 18, is a freshman at the University of Texas.

MIKE DUNLEAVY 6-3 180 Guard

Age: 27 Born: 3-21-54 Brooklyn, New York

High School: Nazareth, Brooklyn, New York

College: South Carolina, 1976

Pro Season: 6th Rockets Season: 5th

How Acquired: Signed as Free Agent, 3-10-78
Prior Pro Career: 6th Round Draft Pick, 99th

Overall, by Philadelphia, 1976. Waived 11-14-77

N.B.A. High Point Game: 48 Vs. Denver, 12-6-80

Married: Wife Emily, son Michael Joseph 1

Mike Dunleavy is coming off what was probably his best professional season to date. He played more minutes, 1609, in more games, 74, and averaged more points, 10.5, than in any of his five years as a pro. Over the course of last season Mike started 32 games and was a starter in all but two of the Rockets 21 playoff games. It's difficult to single out specific games when discussing a season of over 100 contests. But four games do come to mind when Mike Dunleavy is discussed. Back on Nov. 18, 1980 Mike played only a minute, but his jump hook gave the Rockets their 135th and 136th points against Seattle, marking the sixth time in three seasons that Houston has scored 135, the sixth time Mike has scored the 135th point, and the sixth time that Ron's Krispy Fried Chicken treated fans to a chicken dinner the next day with their ticket stubs. Houston has gone over 135 only 20 times in 14 seasons in 574 games. About a month later, as he began seeing more playing time which was to eventually lead to a starting berth, Mike astounded a Summit crowd with an amazing 48 point performance in only 34 minutes of time. He hit 19 of 30 from the field, 10 of 13 from the free throw line to post the sixth highest scoring game in Rockets history. Only Calvin Murphy, 57, Elvin Hayes, 54, 50 and 49 and Moses Malone, 51, ever scored more than Dunleavy in a Rockets uniform. Just after the Feb. 3 All-Star Game Mike took over as a starter in the backcourt, first teaming with Allen Leavell and then down the final six games with Tom Henderson. The Dunleavy-Henderson duo was to start all but two of the 21 playoff games and Mike quickly gained the headlines in the Rockets mini-series with Los Angeles. He totaled but 24 points in three games against the defending World Champions. But it was his 16-foot jumper with :15 seconds left that proved to be the winning basket as the Rockets eliminated the Lakers, 89-86. The fourth, memorable outing for Mike was in game four of the N.B.A. finals with Boston. Down 2-1, Houston needed a victory. Playing 45 minutes as Houston Coach Del Harris went with only six players, Mike tallied 28 points and handed out six assists in helping account for 40 points in a 91-86 Rockets victory. Ironically, prior to the game, Ron's announced a free dinner to all 16,121 in attendance, regardless of points scored, and Dunleavy starred.

CALVIN GARRETT 6-7 190 Forward

Age: 25 Born: 7-11-56 Parsons, Tenn.

High School: East, Nashville, Tenn.

Colleges: Austin-Peay, Tenn., Oral Roberts, Okla. 1980

Pro and Rockets Season: 2nd

How Acquired: Drafted as future by Chicago, 3rd Round, 47th Overall, 1979. Rights acquired from Chicago 6-10-80 for 1982 2nd Round Draft Pick

N.B.A. High Point Game: 22 Vs. Seattle, 11-18-80

Married: Wife Deborah, Daughter Yolanda 6

---

In the summer of 1980 Calvin Garrett had a badly sprained ankle and thought about joining a team in Europe. But the Houston Rockets coaching staff persuaded him to hang on in the Southern California Pro Summer League. Not only did he persevere there, by the 12th game of the season he was a regular forward for the Rockets. A player who averaged 22.2 points, 26th in the nation, as a senior at Oral Roberts, Garrett impressed the Houston coaching staff with his defensive play. Head Coach Del Harris said early in the season that Calvin's biggest assets were his intensity of play and his knowledge of his limitations. He started 35 games, most for a Houston rookie since John Lucas' 54 in 76-77. Shortly after mid-season, Calvin was bothered by a bruised arch and Harris went to his "power" line-up, leaving Calvin with only spot action. But as one writer put it, "look for him in crucial situations, the guy standing out-of-bounds." That was a role at which he was to excel. A lob to Moses Malone won a game at Los Angeles, another to Tom Henderson led to a game winning layup in the playoffs. Unofficially he was four for four in in-bounds completions during the playoffs. That job along with tough defensive play in a couple of games in the San Antonio playoff series was the extent of his late season participation until what was to be the final game of the World Championship series with Boston. His four baskets and a steal helped rally the Rockets from a 17-point deficit, 84-67, with ten minutes left to within three at 92-89 at the 1:51 mark. Houston, however, was to lose the game, 102-91. Though all his starts as a rookie were at the forward position, the team continues to picture him as a big guard. That learning process continued for him in the California League and apparently the backcourt is to his liking. He led the Rockets team to a 7-3 record with averages of 23.8 points, 5th in the league, and 4.6 assists, 9th in the league.

N.B.A. High Point Game: 54 with San Diego
Vs. Detroit 11-13-68

Married: Wife Erna, youngsters Elvin 14, Erna
9, Erica 6 and Ethan 3

One of the finest forwards ever to play professional basketball and a true "iron-man", Elvin Hayes returned to the city of his collegiate triumphs this summer to put on a Rockets uniform for the second time in his career. The all-time scoring and rebounding leader at the University of Houston, he was the top pick in the 1968 college draft and, in 13 seasons since, four with the Rockets, three in San Diego and one in Houston, and nine with the Washington Bullets, he 12 times has been selected to play in the N.B.A. All-Star Game and three times has been voted first team All-Pro. In his career, he has missed only seven games, one last season, of a possible 1,066. Seven times he has played all 82 games and six times he has played in at least 80. He is the N.B.A.'s No. 3 all-time rebounder with 14,656, behind only Wilt Chamberlain and Bill Russell. He's the league's No. 6 all-time scorer with 24,547 points. He will pass the 25,000 mark this season and then pass Jerry West (25,192) as the 5th leading scorer. He also will move up as far as third in total games played and minutes played. He led the N.B.A. in scoring, 28.4 in 68-69 and in rebounding, 16.9 in 69-70 as a member of the Rockets, and then with the Bullets topped the league's rebounders at 18.1 in 73-74. He led the 1977-78 Washington Bullets to the World Championship, leading the team in scoring, 19.7, rebounding, 13.3 and blocks, 1.96. Despite his 9-year absence, he still accumulated enough points and rebounds to remain among the leaders in those categories on the Rockets all-time lists. He is third, behind Calvin Murphy and Rudy Tomjanovich, on the point list with 8,996 as a Rocket, and also ranks third on the rebound list, 5,351, behind Tomjanovich and Moses Malone. His 27.4 scoring average as a Rocket is nearly five points better than Moses Malone's 22.5. Despite playing nearly 1200 pro games, the one that most people ask about occurred while Elvin was at the University of Houston. Here's the facts: Houston 71 U.C.L.A. 69, Jan. 20, 1968, 52,693 at the Astrodome, Hayes 39 points, the-then Lew Alcindor 15 points, the Cougar win snapping a 47-game U.C.L.A. win streak. Houston Coach Guy Lewis, U.C.L.A. Coach John Wooden. Houston in March, 1967, lost to U.C.L.A. 73-58 in the N.C.A.A. semi-finals, then defeated U.C.L.A. in the Astrodome, but again lost in March, 1968, 101-69 to the Bruins in the semi-finals again.

No one expected the Rockets to be in the N.B.A. finals last spring, but Tom Henderson may have had an inkling. After all he's grown accustomed to being in the finals. He quarterbacked the Washington Bullets to the World Championship in 1978 and to the runner-up spot in 1979. He is the only player in the N.B.A. to have been in the finals in three of the last four years. His 77 playoff games over the last five seasons is the high by any active player. Not surprisingly he was at the throttle of the Rockets attack down the stretch last season when four wins in the final six games put the Rockets in the playoffs. He started every playoff game and led the Rockets in assists, averaging 5.0 per game while scoring 6.7 points. He had started 38 games earlier in the season but injuries and illness knocked him out of a starting slot until the final ten days of the season. If indeed one play could stand out of the many in the glorious playoff rise of the 1981 Rockets, it well might be Tom Henderson backpedaling as Los Angeles Lakers guard Magic Johnson drives the lane in the waning seconds of the third and decisive game of the mini-series. Johnson tried a little scoop shot in front of the basket, it missed everything, Moses Malone rebounded, and there was Tom Henderson flat on his back, his defensive job on Johnson a success, and the Rockets having knocked the defending champs out of the playoffs. A scorer at San Jacinto J.C. in Pasadena, Texas where he averaged 24.7 and 30.5 points, he continued his point accumulations at Hawaii, hitting 19.8 and 20.3 in his two seasons there. His play at Hawaii prompted then-Marquette Coach Al McGuire to comment: "Good passers are a dying breed, but Tom is one of the best I've seen." That acclamation has weathered the test of time for Tom in the pros. He has averaged over five assists a game as a pro, ranking fifth in the league at 6.9 in 76-77 and eighth at 6.0 in 78-79. A starter for the United State 1972 Olympic team, Tom was the seventh player taken, by Atlanta, in the 1974 college draft.

Rocket fans easily recall the outstanding defense played by their team in last season's playoffs. Few will recall that a defensive turn-around was taking place in mid-season, about the time that Major Jones was inserted into the starting line-up. In his rookie season, 79-80, Major and Moses Malone were the only Rockets to play in all 82 games. Last season Major's playing time was diminished, but for most of the month of January his play had brought a defensive dimension to the Houston style. Between Jan. 10 and Feb. 4, 1981 Major started 11 games, the Rockets won seven and six times held the opponent under 100 points. Major was playing 25.7 minutes, hitting .500 from the field, averaging 7.7 points and 4.4 rebounds. As a team, the Rockets were allowing only 102.5 points, compared with a 111.8 defensive average on Jan. 10. Major's first start of the season came against Portland, the team which originally drafted him. He made that start a noteworthy one, posting his career point high of 18 by hitting 9 of 14 field goal tries. Major was coming off knee surgery last season but played in 68 games. One of seven sons (and a daughter Clovis) of Caldwell and Cecilia Jones, cotton and soybean farmers in McGehee, Ark., Major picked off 2,052 rebounds at Albany State College (Ga.), a figure surpassed only by Marvin Webster of Morgan State in NCAA annals. Major led NCAA Division II in rebounding in 74-75 at 22.5 and in 75-76 at 19.8. All seven Jones brothers stand 6-8 or better (sister Clovis is 5-10) and only the oldest, Clinton, did not go on to become a basketball star. Four still make a living at the game. Caldwell, Jr. is a forward for the Philadelphia 76ers. 23-year old Charles plays in Europe. Major with the Rockets and Oliver is the head basketball coach at Albany St. The other brothers are Melvin and Wilbert. Wilbert played in the A.B.A. and in the N.B.A.

For his second straight season, Allen Leavell led the Houston Rockets in assists, 4.9 per game compared with a club high 5.4 as a rookie. He has accomplished this despite coming off the bench most of the time. Last season he did start 31 games but played 437 fewer minutes than he had as a rookie. He was drafted in the 5th round by the Rockets, the 104th choice overall, yet emerged as a rookie to lead the team not only in assists, but also in field goal percentage at .503, only the third rookie ever to lead the team in either category. His 17 assists against New York Feb. 13, 1980 is the most by a Rocket since John Lucas dished off 20 at Indiana Apr. 8, 1977. Allen posted his pro point high last season when he hit 24 Feb. 3, 1981 against Denver. However, despite having his playing time nearly cut in half during the playoffs (21.3 regular season, 12.8 playoffs) he played a key role in two major Houston victories. As the Rockets eliminated Kansas City in the 5th game of the Western Conference finals, he came off the bench for 19 minutes to hit five of six field goal tries, add four assists and a steal in scoring 10 points as Houston was a 97-88 victor. In the second game of the N.B.A. finals with the Rockets down a game to Boston, he hit the winning basket, a little 12-foot fade-away jumper that accounted for the winning points in a 92-90 victory. That Houston win snapped a 14-game losing streak against Boston and evened up the final series at a game apiece. Leavell, incidentally, who was 24 last May was, with the exception of Boston's Kevin McHale, the youngest player in last season's finals. In a mid-November game in Seattle, Leavell led an amazing Houston charge in which the Rockets made up a 15-point deficit in just under three minutes. Leavell scored eight of the Rockets 15 and helped force an overtime game. The Rockets, however, lost the contest in the extra session. While growing up in the basketball hotbed of Muncie, Indiana, Allen was stricken by a rare bone disease which locked his right elbow. After almost a year the elbow eventually unlocked and he was able to resume the game of basketball which he began playing when he was four years old.

N.B.A. High Point Game: 51 Vs. Golden State 3-11-81

In just five N.B.A. seasons, Moses Malone has become the league's preeminent rebounder. Last season, with a 14.8 average, he led the league for the second time, and he has finished no lower than third in that category since joining the Houston Rockets in 1976. In 1978-79 when he was voted the league's Most Valuable Player he led the league with a 17.6 rebound average, the highest since Elvin Hayes averaged 18.1 in 1973-74. In addition to his abilities off the backboard, Moses also has become a consistent scorer for the Rockets, upping his point total yearly to a high of 27.8 last season when he was runner-up to Utah's Adrian Dantley for the scoring title. And while on the subject of consistency, he now has scored in double figures in 235 consecutive games, last missing double digits Nov. 1, 1978 when he had nine points against Golden State. That string is the third longest in N.B.A. history, trailing only an on-going 305 by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and 250 by Elvin Hayes in the 68-71 seasons. For the second straight season he was a second team All-N.B.A. choice after earning first team honors in 78-79. He has been selected to play in the last four All-Star Games, twice as a starter. Moses' playoff starts last season were remarkably similar to his regular season achievements, 26.8 points, 14.5 rebounds. That's not surprising, because as one writer put it: "Other players wait until spring to play the game Malone plays all season." His playoff point high of 42 against Kansas City equaled teammate Calvin Murphy's output against San Antonio for the highest scoring playoff game last spring while Moses' 23 rebounds against Los Angeles and Kansas City was the high in that category. Moses had his highest scoring regular season game last March 11 when he hit 20 of 28 field goals and 11 of 12 free throws for a 51-point explosion against the Golden State Warriors, becoming only the third Rocket ever to score as many points. Calvin Murphy leads the list at 57 while Elvin Hayes netted 54. His best rebound effort in a single game was 37 at New Orleans Feb. 9, 1979, that figure the most in an N.B.A. game since Tom Boerwinkle of Chicago had as many against Phoenix Jan. 8, 1970. Moses already owns two N.B.A. records, most offensive rebounds in a single game, 19, and in a season, 587.

Calvin Murphy has left his mark on the game of basketball. A high school All-American, he went on to post the fourth highest scoring average in major college history while at Niagara. His 33.1 point mark is exceeded only by Pete Maravich, Austin Carr and Oscar Robertson. His record as a professional may be even more remarkable. His 16,478 career points ranks him 22nd on the N.B.A. all-time list, fourth among active players, behind only Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Elvin Hayes and Bob Lanier. He has scored over 1,000 points in each of his 11 pro seasons, one of only 13 players, only four guards, to accomplish that feat, and if he does it again he'll be one of only nine. This season he becomes only the 12th player ever to have been with the same franchise for at least 12 seasons. His free throw shooting is legendary. Last season he hit .958, best in the N.B.A.'s 35-year history, missing only nine of 215 attempted, along the way hitting 78 in a row from Dec. 27 thru Feb. 28, shattering Rick Barry's old mark of 60 straight. His .890 career free throw mark is second only to Barry's .900 while his playoff free throw percentage of .935 is the best ever, that mark boosted by a spectacular .967 on 58 of 60 in last spring's playoffs and a perfect 13 in the 1980 playoffs. Calvin is the Rockets all-time leader in games played, points, assists and steals. That he played a major role for the Rockets last season was not surprising. That he did it coming off the bench after the 11th game of the season in a "sixth man" role may have been. He finished second on the club in scoring at 15.9 and proved to be the deciding factor in several Rocket decisions. His scoring picked up to 18.1 in the playoffs and he was particularly effective against the San Antonio Spurs. He averaged 25.4 points while hitting .579 from the field and all 23 free throws against the intra-state rival. His 42 points in the seventh game of the Spurs playoff series equaled a Moses Malone total against Kansas City for the league playoff high scoring game this season. He has the Rockets single game point high of 57, March 18, 1978 against New Jersey.

In his two seasons as a Houston Rocket, Billy Paultz has played a vital role in the team's stretch drives to the playoffs. Coming to Houston in January, 1980, he started the final 20 games of that season. Again last year, he started 21 of the final 22 games as the Rockets went 13-9 to make the playoffs. But post-season competition is nothing new to Paultz. His two collegiate teams at St. John's qualified for post-season play, the 1969 N.C.A.A., and the 1970 N.I.T. He now has played on 11 consecutive playoff teams as a pro, the first five with the New York Nets, including the 1974 A.B.A. title, and then four, including two Central Division titles, with the San Antonio Spurs before coming to Houston for the last two. A difficult player to categorize, Paultz can do a little of everything, score some, play good defense, rebound, set picks, find the open man, block out and block shots. Even more valuable to the Rockets climb to the league finals may have been the experience and maturity which he had. Teaming Paultz with Moses Malone on the Rockets front line is a major reason for the team's late-season transformation and advance to the finals. The "two-center" attack helped make "Rocketball" a success and Billy was to make an even bigger contribution in the playoffs. He averaged 12.1 points compared to a 7.4 regular season mark, 7.0 rebounds to 4.8 in regular season. His defense and shot blocking helped the Rockets set an all-time playoff record by holding opponents under 100 points nine straight times. Consistency in the scoring column was his playoff trademark - 11.3 vs. Los Angeles, 12.7 vs. San Antonio, 12.8 vs. Kansas City, 11.2 vs. Boston. Durability also has been a trademark of his pro career, missing only 17 of a possible 908 regular season contests, and never missing more than six games in any single season. Billy almost played for present Texas Coach Abe Lemons at Oklahoma City, but ended up back East at St. John's in New York after a year at Cameron (Okla.) Junior College. He almost originally was a Rocket as a pro, having been drafted by the San Diego club in 1970. But he chose to play for his college Coach Lou Carnesecca who had joined the A.B.A. Nets.

In two short years Boston Celtic Larry Bird has made a big hit in the N.B.A. Houston veteran Robert Reid for four seasons has labored away in relative obscurity. But last spring's N.B.A. finals proved that Reid has taken a couple of more steps up the ladder of fame. Guarding Bird so closely that he would "know how many hairs were on his chest," the four-year Rocket helped hold the All-Pro Celtic to 15.3 points, nearly six under his regular season mark of 21.2. In games three and four Bird was limited to only three baskets and a total of eight points in each. In game four, a 91-86 Houston victory, Bird's stat sheet showed no offensive rebounds, an achievement Reid is especially proud of. "When he works at it," says Rockets Coach Del Harris, "Robert can be as good a defensive player as there is." His work on Bird was not a surprise to his teammates who already know him as a fine, all-purpose player. In fact, his adaptability is perfectly illustrated by the fact that during the regular season he started all 82 games and 41 starts came at guard, 41 at forward. He was second on the club - to Moses Malone - both scoring and rebounding, 15.9 and 7.1, and racked up similar figures in the playoffs, 16.1 scoring and 6.8 rebounding. His 27 points topped Houston scoring twice in the finals with Boston while he recorded his all-time pro high of 33 points in the Western Conference Semi-Finals against San Antonio. Additionally he was the second leader playmaker for the Rockets during the playoffs, dishing off 4.7 assists to trail only Tom Henderson's 5.0. A 6-1 high school guard, he was to grow almost seven inches before completing his collegiate career at St. Mary's in San Antonio. Along with his on-court achievements, Robert maintains an attitude which results in productive offcourt help for others. At last year's All-Star Game, he was the recipient of the Michelob/NBA Humanitarian of the Year Award for his work with the Special Olympics, Big Brothers, hospitals and local organizations. On receiving that award, Robert commented: "I knew I'd get to the All-Star Game one way or another. Maybe I'll be there in uniform one of these years." You probably won't find anybody wanting to bet against it.

N.B.A. High Point Game: 21 Vs. Dallas 2-4-81

Two months into last season, the Houston Rockets signed free agent forward Bill Willoughby. At the time, Rockets Coach Del Harris said he felt the team needed a forward who could jump, play defense and block shots. Bill Willoughby was to answer that need and play an important role in the team's run to the N.B.A. finals. Bill was to play in 55 games, 11 as a starting forward. He averaged just over six points and four rebounds while playing around 21 minutes per game in both regular season and playoffs. Though he had his career point high of 21 against Dallas last season and had 18 rebounds against Philadelphia when he was with Atlanta, a blocked shot in the mini-series against Los Angeles may have given him as much notice as the fame he achieved in 1975 when at 18 he became the youngest player ever to perform in an N.B.A. game. It was late in game one with the Lakers when Willoughby stunned the basketball world with a clean block of an attempted stuff by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. Many called it the best block they have ever seen. "He has unique physical ability, like one in several million as far as a combination of strength, quickness, jumping, speed, size." Still but 24 years old, Bill has been with four teams already but appears to have found a niche with the Rockets. He spent two years with Atlanta, then played in Buffalo in 77-78, sat out the 78-79 season and played with Cleveland the following year. Along with teammate Moses Malone and Philadelphia's Darryl Dawkins, Bill is one of only three players to have made the jump directly from high school to the N.B.A. he averaged 31.6 points and 17.0 rebounds in leading Morrow High of Englewood to the New Jersey State II title and then was drafted in the second round of the 1975 draft. He almost wound up at Kentucky or North Carolina but opted to sign with the Atlanta Hawks.

DON'T JUST ASK FOR EXTRA SPACE
IN YOUR PICKUP, DEMAND IT.

Many economy sized pickups promise you savings. But at what price? Do you have to scrunch up with your knees under your chin, balance your groceries precariously on the seat, leave your valuables at the not so tender mercy of passers-by? Not when you have 11.3 cubic feet of storage space inside the cab you don't. And in our Datsun King Cab you do! It's the only small pickup with reclining bucket seats. With enough room for over-six-footers to stretch out in, with a place inside to stow the groceries and lock up your valuables. Whatever you do with an economy pickup, a King Cab gives you more to do it with. Lots more. And a test sit, stretch, stow will prove it to you. So come on in and sit, stretch and stow. Today.

DATSON KING CAB.

NOBODY DEMANDS
MORE FROM A DATSUN
THAN DATSUN.
DATSON
WE ARE DRIVEN
